Help the Developmental Psychology Lab at Washington and Lee!
Do coworkers affect children’s future careers goals?

Dr. Megan Fulcher’s lab at Washington & Lee University is conducting a study examining the effects of coworkers on career aspirations across various ages.

What you need to know:

- The study will take less than 30 minutes.
- You do not need to come into the lab. We will bring the study to you.
- Your child will be asked to rate their interest in twelve jobs. Your child will then be shown pictures of potential work places and coworkers and be asked to rate their interest in those jobs. Finally, your child will complete a questionnaire about their workplace expectations.
- Your child will receive a small thank you gift upon completion of the study.

Interested? Please email fulcherlab@gmail.com.

---

Washington & Lee University
Developmental Psychology Lab
fulcherlab@gmail.com
Research Assistants:
Emily Warner & Kingsley Schroeder

Megan Fulcher, Ph.D.
Associate Professor of Psychology
Washington & Lee University
fulcherm@wlu.edu
(540) 458-8107